A retro 1960/70's teak and walnut dining suite, comprising an oval twin pedestal dining table upon metal tubular supports, length 178cm, and a set of six matching pedestal chairs with green rexine upholstered seats.

There are chips to the edges of the veneer on the table top also the veneer is lifting slightly at the joins and the edges. Repair to veneer on the edge of table. One of the pedestals is misaligned, the table top has been reattached to the pedestals at some point. The chairs have cracks to veneers and some areas lifting, the leather to one seat has split. The chairs do not adjust in height, there are two taller chairs and four smaller. Images of affected areas on the David Lay website.

The table is 91cm wide
